Energy Direct Debits

A comprehensive guide to how each energy company organises direct debit payments.

utilities/energy-direct-debits/](https://www.moneysavingexpert.com/utilities/energy-direct-debits/)

Means-tested benefits providers

Those on certain means-tested benefits will get an extra £650 this year. This will come in two payments, the first of which has already been paid to most of those eligible.

Other Energy Support

For example, millions of people on lower incomes can get the £150 warm home discount from October, while those over state pension age can get up to £600 through the winter fuel payment from November.

Automatic £400

Almost all households will get £400 this winter to help with rising energy bills. For most, the grant will be automatic, paid by your supplier between October 2022 and March 2023. However, those on non-smart prepayment meters will have to take action to get the money, as for some it will be paid in the form of energy vouchers.

Help from the Council

Check if you can get help from your council. Under the Household Support Fund, local authorities in England have access to a pool of £1 billion in funding to help those most in need. Eligibility varies, as it's up to councils to decide, but generally the grant is for vulnerable households, and those in most need of support. To find out what your council offers and whether you might qualify for support, and to apply, contact your council as soon as you can, as funding could run out at any time.

Specialist Energy Support for Disabled People

If you have a disability, as well as the organisations above, you can also get additional help from Scope. A disability equality charity, it offers free energy advice to disabled people in England and Wales. You can contact it on 0808 801 0828 or email. Through its disability energy support scheme, it can offer advice on a range of issues, including managing debt, efficiency, accessing benefits, grants and trusts, access to fuel vouchers, understanding bills and support with registering for the Priority Services Register.

Help for Vulnerable Households

Under the Household Support Fund, councils in England have access to a pool of £1 billion in funding to help those most in need. The cash is available to local authorities to spend between April and September 2022, and is aimed at supporting the most vulnerable with essentials during the UK's ongoing recovery from the pandemic. The Government has announced that it's going to extend this scheme, with another £500 million in funding to be made available between October 2022 and March 2023

The fund is aimed at providing small grants to meet daily needs, such as energy bills, as well as other utilities, housing costs, food and other essentials

Eligibility varies, as it's up to councils to decide, but generally the grant is for vulnerable households, and those in most need of support. To find out what your council offers and whether you might qualify for support, and to apply, contact your council as soon as you can, as funding could run out at any time.

£150 disability benefit payment

Certain disability benefits will receive a one-off payment of £150 in September. This will be paid straight into the account you currently receive your benefits into and is designed to help towards the cost of specialist equipment and food, and increased transport costs. To qualify, you must be receiving, or have begun an eventually successful claim as of 25 May 2022 for, one of the following benefits:

- Armed forces independence payment
- Attendance allowance
- Constant attendance allowance
- Disability Living Allowance
- Personal Independence Payment
- War pensioners' mobility supplement

The Government says these payments will not count towards the benefit cap, and will not have any impact on existing benefits. You can also still qualify for the £150 payment if you've swapped disability benefits for mobility aids under the Motability Scheme – though details on how this will work in practice have yet to be confirmed.

Support Groups

For a lot of people, a place to talk to others in similar situations and share ideas is really important, which is why community support groups on social media are thriving.

Energy Support and Advice UK. This Facebook group, launched in 2020, is one of the most active, with more than 30,000 members sharing advice and tips.

Strict Rules for Energy Disconnection

There are very strict rules for disconnection and suppliers very rarely disconnect people due to debt. Firms must take all reasonable steps to avoid disconnecting an energy supply for debt, and it should always be a last resort.

Most suppliers have voluntarily agreed to never disconnect you at any time of year if you have children under the age of six, are disabled, have long-term health problems or have severe financial problems. They also won't disconnect you during winter if you have children under the age of 16.

Top Tips

(taken from Martin Lewis)

- Pay by direct debit if you can. It could cut around £100 per year from your bills. The price cap is set lower for those who choose to pay by direct debits.
- Check items left on standby – certain appliances such as the TV, microwaves, toasters, kettles, Smart Home devices (Alexa, etc), lamps, fans, hair dryers and more. These all use some power when plugged in but not in use, therefore try to be mindful of unplugging.
- Talk to your energy supplier. They must help too. If you're falling behind with payments, Ofgem regulations state that the provider must offer help. This usually involves a manageable payment plan, adapting timelines, access to funds/grants and more.
- 'Heat the human not the home'
- Free water-saving shower head if you're not on a meter https://www.savewatersavemoney.co.uk/?utm_source=MSE&utm_medium=website&utm_content=cut-water-bills#/ Cutting just a minute off your shower time could save £207 a year in energy bills, and a further £105 a year in water bills if you have a meter – £312 a year for an average four-person household.
- Turn down the temperature of your boiler flow to 70 degrees C.

Specialist Support and Advice on Energy Bills

The charities below offer help and advice on most energy bill problems if you're struggling to pay, including help with finding Government grants and schemes you might be eligible for, help applying for support through energy supplier's charitable trusts, and help with complaints.

National Energy Action (NEA) - The NEA is a national fuel poverty and energy efficiency charity that offers a free support service known as WASH (Warm and Safe Homes). It provides energy advice to households in England and Wales. You can contact it on 0800 304 7159, or fill in an online form <https://www.nea.org.uk/get-help/>. It offers advice on income maximisation, energy billing, fuel debt, energy efficiency and trust fund applications.

Citizens Advice - If you're in England or Wales, you can speak to a trained adviser on 0808 223 1133 or fill in online form and they'll respond by email. It says it can help with most energy problems and it can also refer you to its extra help unit – which can provide dedicated support to people in vulnerable situations to resolve problems with energy firms. <https://www.citizensadvice.org.uk/>

StepChange - A debt charity that provides free debt advice to people in England, Scotland and Wales. You can contact it on 0800 138 1111 or get online debt advice.

MoneyHelper - Sponsored by the Department for Work and Pensions, it provides free, impartial and confidential money guidance to anyone in the UK. You can contact it on 0800 138 7777, or via webchat, email or WhatsApp. As well as personalised advice and guidance on money issues, including energy bills and how to prioritise debt, it can help you find a free and confidential debt adviser in your area <https://www.moneyhelper.org.uk/en>

National Debt Line - A debt charity that gives free independent advice to people in England, Scotland and Wales. You can talk to via webchat here: <https://nationaldebtline.org/> or by calling 0808 808 4000. It has a free budget tool and can help you work out a debt management plan.

Energy Bill Grants

Major energy companies are providing grants to households who are experiencing financial difficulties. These are non-repayable grants.

Most require the applicant to have spoken to a debt adviser before applying, but more information is available in the helpful guide below:

Bromley Brighter Beginnings

is a registered charity helping families in need in the London Borough of Bromley. Harnessing the power of our local community, our service is quick, confidential, and respectful of those we support and the challenging situations they find themselves in.

Bromley Brighter Beginnings

WHAT WE DO:

We operate on a referral basis: professionals supporting the family (e.g. health visitor, social worker, teacher etc) submit a request for support via our website. Once a referral is made, one of our trained volunteers liaise the family or supporting professional to arrange delivery of the items requested.

Select all the expenses you want to claim

- Working from home
This includes the cost of things used only for your work, such as heating and lighting the room you work in, or the cost of business telephone calls. You must keep records of what you've spent.
- Uniforms, work clothing and tools
This includes the cost of washing your uniform, or repairing or replacing protective clothing or small tools that you own but you use for work. You do not need to provide any receipts.
- Vehicles you use for work
This includes costs for mileage and fuel, depending on if you use your own vehicle or a company vehicle.
- Travel and overnight expenses
This includes the money you spent on food or overnight stays that your employer has not paid back. You must keep records of what you've spent.
- Professional fees and subscriptions
This includes fees or subscriptions that you pay to approved professional organisations \(opens in a new window or tab\) to be able to do your job. You will need to know the full annual fee, and any employer contributions.
- Buying other equipment
If you must buy substantial equipment to do your work, like a computer, you may be able to claim tax relief on the cost. If you choose to buy the equipment, you cannot claim tax relief.
- Other expenses
